

Questions to Ask Your Vet about Your Pet's Dental Health

Questions to Ask Your Vet about Your Pet's Dental Health

Published February 10, 2026

SHARE

- Facebook \(opens in new window\)
- Twitter \(opens in new window\)
- Pinterest \(opens in new window\)
- Download \(opens in new window\)
- <?xml version="1.0" encoding="UTF-8"?> Email \(opens in new window\)
- Print \(opens in same window\)

You and your dog or cat make each other smile all the time, but your pet can't take care of their dental health as easily as you can. (Let's hear it for opposable thumbs!) So, your cat or canine depends on you, their loving pet parent, to help them look after their teeth. It's a topic you should discuss with your vet on regular visits. We've assembled a list of questions you may want to ask them during your next checkup.

When Should I Start Brushing My Pet's Teeth?

Some people think dental problems are only an issue for older dogs. Not necessarily! By the age of 2 or 3, many pets already have some degree of oral health issues. There's no set age for when you should start brushing your dog or cat's teeth, so consult your vet on when it's safe and beneficial to begin. Establishing a brushing routine while your pet is young will help promote healthy teeth and gums as they grow.

How Often Should I Brush My Pet's Teeth?

Regular brushing is important for your pets, just like it is for you. Your vet can let you know how often it should be done at home.

Table of Contents

What Products Do I Need to Take Care of My Pet's Dental Health?

There are a variety of brushes, wipes, pet-specific toothpastes, water additives and dental treats that can support your pet's oral health. Ask your vet for a few suggestions.

How Can I Make Toothbrushing Less Stressful for My Pet?

Your vet can recommend a variety of ways to make the process easy and chill for both you and your furry companion, from establishing a consistent routine (practice makes perfect!) to less stressful approaches, techniques and products you can try. Keep in mind that the less nerve-racking it is for your pet, the more likely they will let you do a proper job.

How Often Should My Dog or Cat Get a Professional Dental Cleaning?

Based on your pet's breed, size and current dental health, your vet can make a recommendation on when to get a professional teeth cleaning done. This process does a thorough job of removing plaque and tartar, and then polishes the teeth to help reduce plaque buildup in the future.

What Dental Issues Should I Watch for in Older Pets?

After a lifetime of chomping on kibble or gnawing on catnip toys, older pets can be more likely to experience dental issues. Ask your vet what symptoms you need to be on alert for.

Is Stinky Breath Normal?

If your pooch's smooches or cat's cheek rubs have you gasping for fresh air, ask your vet to check them out — there could be an underlying cause. They'll be able to help diagnose the issue and recommend a course of treatment.

Does the Tooth Fairy Visit Cats and Dogs?

Please ask your vet. We're curious to know, too.

More Articles Like This

3 Tips For Maintaining Your Cat's Dental Health

Grooming your cat, playing with your cat, and making sure they're eating a balanced diet are all great ways to take care of your feline friend. But given that oral health issues can be common in cats, your cat's dental health should be top of mind, too. Thankfully, there are easy steps you can take to help take care of

READ MORE

4 Tips for Dog Oral Care

Taking care of your dog's oral health is an important part of being a pet parent. Setting up a regular oral healthcare routine will help ensure they have clean teeth, fresh breath and a healthy smile. Here are four tips for helping your dog be at their best when it comes to caring for their mouth. Take an Up-close Look

READ MORE

4 Ways for You and Your Dog to Fall in Love with Fall

This summer, you and your dog probably enjoyed countless hours playing fetch outside and soaking up the sun. While the leaves may be changing color and the air may be cooler, that doesn't mean the end of outdoor fun for the year. Fall is a wonderful time for you and your dog to get out of the house and enjoy the crisp,

READ MORE

Activities and Supplements to Support Joint Health for Older Dogs

If your pup is getting a little gray in their muzzle, they might have lost a little pep in their step or started stumbling over obstacles they used to spring over. As our dogs age, their mobility will decrease, just like it does for humans. And as with people, the healthy thing to do for both body and mind is to stay a

READ MORE

Source URL:

<https://www.greenies.com/blogs/what-were-barking-about-greenies/questions-to-ask-your-vet-about-your-pet-s-dental-health>